Before You Hire — A Note from AMWASA

Being listed in our directory means a service provider has registered with AMWASA. It does not constitute an endorsement of their work, and AMWASA is not responsible for any transaction or agreement made between authors and service providers.

We strongly encourage you to do your due diligence before contracting any service provider. Here is how to protect yourself:

1	Request a portfolio of previous work — specifically work in a similar genre or style to yours.
2	Ask for references from other authors they have worked with.
3	Confirm pricing, scope, and timelines in writing before work begins.
4	Use a simple written agreement or contract — even for small jobs. (See the AMWASA Consignment Agreement template as a reference for structuring agreements.)
5	Trust your instincts. A service provider who makes you feel uncomfortable or rushes you into a decision is not the right fit.
6	Report any concerns to AMWASA — we take the safety of our community seriously.
